Introduction

The college of Nursing, Lady Hardinge Medical College and Associated Hospitals, New Delhi is a pioneer institute for nursing education in India. It was started as a school of nursing in 1916 and was upgraded to college of nursing in September 2007 with the initiative and financial support of Ministry of Health and Family Welfare. The College of Nursing is academically affiliated to University of Delhi and is recognized by Indian Nursing Council. The primary objective of the college is to improve the quality of nursing education keeping in mind the growing need for quality nursing care.

The prestigious medical college has two Associated Hospitals, Smt. Sucheta Kriplani Hospital (formerly Lady Hardinge Hospital) and Kalawati Saran Children Hospital, from where the students gain excellent practical experience.

Course of studies

The College of Nursing offers B.Sc. (Hons.) Nursing Course of 4 years duration

Philosophy of the College of Nursing

The College of Nursing believes that:

The B.Sc.(Hons.) Nursing Course of 4 years duration should be planned around the nursing care need of the society as well as the educational needs & personal development of nursing students. The Primary focus of the educational programme is to prepare the student nurse for professional nursing practices in all fields.

Another focus of the course is to offer an educational base needed for continuing nursing education.

The faculty of the college accepts the responsibility of helping the students to adjust to new situations and provides them with opportunity, which contributes towards development of the student as a person, responsible citizen & competent practitioner.

Objectives of Educational Programme:

The aim of the course is to select students with potential for professional Nursing and provide the needed environment and experience.

To develop an understanding of the biological and behavioral Sciences applied in meeting the Nursing needs of individual patients and acquire ability to plan and implement it in care of the sick, prevention of disease, promotion of health, rehabilitation and in meeting emergency situations in co-operation with others.

To develop understanding and ability to use communication skills effectively and to maintain good inter-personal relationship.

To create an understanding of the Nurse's individual responsibility as a member of society and as a member of nursing profession and ability to participate in the changing society.

To develop an appreciation and awareness of the need for continuing education for growth and development of self and profession.

To develop an understanding of nursing with a view to generate new perspectives and innovative approaches to deal with problems encountered in nursing and health field.

To equip the students with sound theoretical knowledge by integrating other science subjects like behavioral science and biological science.
